Legally Responsible Relatives are: spouses (e.g. husband for wife, wife for husband) and parents for children under 21.

The Legally Responsible Relative is not absolved from providing financial resources for the care of his or her spouse or child. The Department of Social Services expects the legally responsible relative to cooperate with the process of substantiating the income and resources of the responsible relative in order to determine the amounts the Legally Responsible Relative will be required to pay. Legally Responsible Relatives may be taken to court for failure to support their spouses or minor children. Failure to provide requested financial information may also result in the legally responsible relative being taken to court.
